MIDDLETOWN HIGH CLASS OF 1972 AND 1973 HAVE 40th-YEAR REUNION

With the onset of desegregation at the beginning of the 1971-72 school year in the Hillsborough County School District, those students who would have graduated as Tigers from Middleton High School in 1972 and 1973 were denied that opportunity. The students were displaced throughout the county, but they maintained a friendship. The weekend of July 20-22, 2012, about 60 of the former students, many from out of town, gathered at the Crown Plaza Hotel in Sabal Park for their 40th-year reunion. There was a Meet and Greet on Friday, Games and Activities and Banquet on Saturday and Worship at New Hope on Sunday. Among those who assisted with details of the weekend included from left: Lionel Woodall, Cynthia Myles, Barbara Shazer, Belinda Roberts, Doretha Edgecomb (Banquet speaker), Albertine Parker, Carolyn Harris Jackson and Ronald Peterson. City Council Approves Settlement With Former Police Captain

BY IRIS B. HOLTEN
Sentinel City Editor

On Thursday during their regular City Council meeting, board members approved without discussion, the tentative settlement between a former Tampa Police Captain and the City of Tampa. The settlement brings to a close a lawsuit that has spanned 5 years.

Mayor Bob Buckhorn said the City has agreed to pay former police Captain Marion Lewis $350,000.

The presiding judge over the lawsuit must also approve the settlement.

When contacted by the Sentinel, Lewis said, "Obviously, it has been a long journey and I'm glad that it has come to a conclusion. It was a family decision."

He further stated that the important issues have been clarified by the lawsuit.

"The Courts have ruled that qualifying for an election by taking the Oath of trials and tribulations that I went through, then my journey was worth it. This was never about money, it was about principle."

Lewis said he believes retirement should be a happy time and that was taken from him in the manner in which he left the Tampa Police Department.

He said now that it is over, he can close this chapter and move on to the next chapter in his life. He said he is grateful for the prayers and support he received during this journey.

in Spite Of School's Closure, Officials Pleased With Academic Results

BY GWEN HAYES
Sentinel Editor

What has been brewing for several weeks at A. T. Jones Math Science and Technology Academy, came to an end on Monday when the Hillsborough County School Board voted unanimously to take the school's charter.

In spite of the revocation, Bob Morrison, a member of the A. T. Jones Academic Board, said, "We were, as a board, pleased with the academic results the school has 2 years. The K-2 students showed a 95% proficiency in the national standardized test, and the 3rd-4th grade students exceeded the district and state statistics in 5 of 8 categories. This shows the education model was working," he explained.

The School District stated last week that the school was in trouble because of its lack of turn in monthly financial statements.

Morrison said, business-wise three things happened:

1) The 2011 Legislature cut funding in K-12 by $500 per student, which meant the school received $100,000 less in revenue in year 2 than it did in year 1;
2) 3 key academic components were not considered part of the core curriculum — they were electives — Mandarin Chinese, technology and physical education.

"Proposal For Support.

"We've made it, if not all, of our current obligations. Because we've spent so much effort in closing out the current year successfully, did not have the time to partake in the fundraising.

"From a business standpoint, it would not be feasible to start another year. We want to assure our parents, teachers and staff that we would have the financial backing to complete the upcoming year.

Morrison stated that the parents were upset with the school closing because they were pleased with the educational progress of their children.

A federal grand jury returned an indictment charging Frederick R. Green, 33, of Naples, with making false claims against the government, fraudulently using access devices, aggravated identity theft, fraudulently using fifteen or more access devices, and stealing government property.

If convicted, Green has also been arrested in Hillsborough County faces a maximum penalty of five years in federal prison for each of the false claim charges. He faces up to ten years in federal prison for the aggravated identity theft charge. Green faces a mandatory penalty of two years in federal prison. The indictment also notifies Green that the United States intends to forfeit a Volt and a Dodge Charger, which are alleged to be traceable to proceeds of the offenses.

According to the indictment, from January 20, 2012 through July 12, 2012, Green knowingly prepared and filed five false income tax returns with the Internal Revenue Service seeking tax refunds. He also possessed fifteen or more unauthorized access devices. Green allegedly used one of the unauthorized access devices, a debit card, to obtain more than $1,000. Green allegedly obtained the debit card by unlawfully using the identification of another person.

After his 18th birthday, John became a registered voter and has voted throughout the years without a problem. However, when he attempted to vote earlier this week, he learned that he had been purged from the system.

"The lady asked if I had ever been arrested and I told her about 25 years ago," he said.

Today, John doesn't remember much about the incident, other than it was a drug related charge. He never thought about the arrest because it never came up.

Now, John joins the thousands of people who must apply to have his rights restored. He was told that not only is he prohibited from voting, it will take five or six years to obtain clemency.

"I voted for President Barack Obama in 2008, and I voted in 2010. So why is this just coming up now," John wondered.

"In the 25 years since the arrest, John has never encountered a problem such as this. And, the fact that it will take so long to have his rights restored, is even more bothersome. However, John plans to go through the process and have his rights restored. He realizes the importance of casting his vote and will not be denied the right — no matter how long it takes.

Neighborhood Pools Not Accessible

For the children of East Tampa, Cyrus Greene is the only community swimming pool in their immediate area available for use.

City of Tampa spokesperson, Ali Gibson, said according to Parks and Recreation, the parking lot at Cyrus Greene is being resurfaced, but the pool is open.

"As far as the pool at Williams Park is concerned, we hope to have it open for service by the summer of 2013. The pool at Ascension Park is still being evaluated to determine what work will be done.

"We are doing our best not to deprive the children of using the pools, and we are redirecting them to other pools close to their neighborhoods."
Occupy Tampa Group To Leave West Tampa Park

BY LEON B. CREWS
Sentinel Staff Writer

Six months after being evicted from parks and other areas around Downtown Tampa, businessman Joe Redner gave the Occupy Tampa Group permission to use the Voice of Freedom Park in West Tampa as a place to put up their tents and launch their political rallies.

Initially, the group was well received by the residents and business owners in the area of Main Street and Albany Avenue, where the park is located.

However, the agenda of the group was lost, no clear leader emerged. Redner, who also opposed the group, did not see the complaints from the city, and had gone by the park to see for himself what was going on.

"I decided that I would give the group until September 15th to vacate the park. They have no contract or lease, so I won't have a problem getting them to leave. "After they're gone, I will have the park not just restored, but made even better."

The group from the park, City Councilman Frank Reddick, who also opposed the group living in the park, requested the city Attorney look into the situation and see what they could do to evict the group from what is essentially private property.

On Thursday, Redner addressed the Council and announced that he had received the complaints from the city, and had gone by the park to see for himself what was going on.

"I decided that I would give the group until September 15th to vacate the park. They have no contract or lease, so I won’t have a problem getting them to leave. "After they're gone, I will have the park not just restored, but made even better."

The Occupy Tampa Group has until September 15th to vacate the Voice of Freedom Park.

Children’s Board Approves Interim CEO

BY IRIS B. HOLT
Sentinel City Editor

In keeping with a pattern set several months ago, the Board of Directors of the Hillsborough County Children’s Board voted to name an Interim CEO. Former Tampa Mayor Pam Iorio will fill the position for the next six months.

At the end of the meeting that lasted more than two hours, the board agreed to pay Dr. Luanne Panacek $28,000 and $8,000 in benefits until her contact expires on October 1. She will serve in the capacity of a staff member. She will also receive a severance and benefits package for 26 weeks in addition to any remaining vacation and sick time she has accrued.

In recent months, several board members had called for Dr. Panacek, who has led the organization since 1997, to step down from the position that paid $371,000 per year.

Ms. Iorio will receive $13,966 per month and $544 for any job related expenses per month. She will not have a benefits package.

Ms. Iorio will extend her contract on a month-to-month basis if the board has not hired a permanent CEO at the end of her six-month contract.

I don't like talking about the subject of suicide, mainly because it usually never comes up until someone takes his or her own life. Unfortunately, too, it is an example of one of those days.

Monday night it was reported nationally that Tennessee Titan running back O. J. Murdock allegedly killed himself outside of his former high school in Tampa. The news had me frozen in front of the television because, after his name registered with me, I realized that I knew this kid.

I first met him 11 years ago when he was a 14-year-old track and field phenomenon. At the time, Murdock was considered one of the fastest athletes at his age in Hillsborough County. He was preparing for a state competition when his coach brought him to the Sentinel office where I did a feature story on him. Even back then, I could tell that he was something special. The first thing that I noticed was his heart. It was abnormally thick for a person so young. It was obvious that as he matured and filled out his frame, he was going to be a problem for whatever sport he chose.

During the interview, I remember asking him his ultimate goal in life. Without hesitation, he said he wanted to be a professional football player. I teased him about having to live up to another famous O. J. if he decided to follow that path. In a response typically cocky teen, he shrugged his shoulders at the suggestion of possible pressure. It was as if any potential future comparisons to an NFL legend was no big deal. That was the O. J. Murdock I fondly remember meeting, a young man who exuded quiet strength and confidence.

It is always a surprising and sad occasion when a young person chooses death over life. But, it becomes outright perplexing when that same person, by all appearances, reached a personal level of success. O. J. made it. He fulfilled his childhood dream. A feat many of us aren't able to claim. And yet, there was something in his life so distressing to him that he felt his only chance at relief involved stopping his own heartbeat.

The worse part of this kind of occurrence is that there is always a group of devastated people left to pick up the pieces. Loved ones who will forever wonder why it had to happen, and who will never stop asking themselves if there was anything they could have done to make a difference?

I don't know how many times it can be said that death is a permanent solution for a problem that only lasts temporarily. But, it's obvious that too many people aren't getting the message.

O. J. Murdock became just the latest casualty of an ongoing war human beings continue to have with their own minds. And at this point, it really doesn't matter what drove him over the edge, because the unsettling truth is that, had he held on a little while longer, he would have been able to realize that whatever was bothering him was just something else deserving of nothing more than a shoulder shrug... Not a very big deal at all.

Nearly 4,000 Cast Ballots In First Days Of Early Voting

By Iris B. Holton
Sentinel City Editor

On Monday, July 30th, Early Voting began in Hillsborough County. Nearly 4,000 registered voters cast ballots at the Early Voting sites.

Bloomington Library drew the largest number of voters during the first three days with 499 ballots cast. The lowest turnout was at the North Tampa Library where 129 citizens voted.

The votes are as follow:
- Fred B. Karl County Center, 163; Robert L. Gilder Elections Service Center, 216; Bloomington Library, 499; and C. Blythe Andrews Library, 240.

Other libraries where votes were cast include Jan Platt Library, 405; Jimmie B. Keel Library, 499; and New Tampa Library, 143; North Tampa Library, 129; Braton Memorial Library, in Plant City, 316; Riverview Branch Library, 200; and SouthShore Library, 351.

Registered voters also cast ballots at Temple Terrace Library, 218; Town N' Country Library, 178; Upper Tampa Bay Library, 196; and West Tampa Library, 146.

Early Voting will continue until Saturday, August 11th. The Primary Election will take place on August 14th.

Feds Seek Hillsborough Voter Purge Records

The U.S. Department of Justice is demanding that Hillsborough County turn over voter purge records, placing the county into a growing legal battle over Governor Rick Scott's push to clean out the state's voter registry.

On Wednesday, a subpoena was served on the court for documents dating back to January 1st relating to any efforts at identifying voters as potential non-citizens. Hillsborough County Elections Supervisor, Earlennard, said he would comply with the subpoena. Like other supervisors across the state, Lennard stopped efforts to purge voters when the tools to cross-reference citizenship and voter registration proved unreliable.

The subpoena came the same day the American Civil Liberties Union alleged that more than 17,000 former felons whose civil rights had been restored never received their notices of rights restoration. More than 13,000 of them aren't registered and may not know they are eligible to vote.

Florida's Voter Purge Violates Federal Law

The U.S. Justice Department has filed papers in federal court in Tampa asserting that Florida's efforts to purge the voter rolls of non-citizens is a violation of the federal Voting Rights Act.

The July 27th filing, known as a statement of interest, asserts that before Florida began scrapping the rolls in search of non-citizens, it was required to submit the proposal to the federal government. Under Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, five "covered" Florida counties are subject to a process known as pre-clearance: Hillsborough, Collier, Libree, Hendry, and Monroe.

The feds say Florida never submitted the new "citizenship list maintenance practices" to them for approval, even though they did submit an unrelated proposal to clear the state's voter registry. The subpoenas are part of a "civil rights lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court in Orlando by the American Civil Liberties Union."

Former Republican Governor Backs Democratic Candidates

Former Florida Governor Charlie Crist recently announced his endorsement for Bill Nelson, Senator Nelson is the incumbent Democrat.

Rep. Connie Mack, IV is challenging Sen. Nelson in the upcoming election. The endorsement is perceived by some as another step away from the Republican Party by Crist. Some speculate that Crist will try to reclaim the governor’s seat in 2014, but as a Democrat. Crist also plans to attend a fundraiser for Senator Nelson next week. Former President Bill Clinton will be the featured speaker.

Crist has also shown support for two other Democrats. Patrick Murphy, who is running against Rep. Allen West for the U. S. Representative Seat and Ken Welch, who is campaigning for a seat on the Pinellas County Board of Commissioners.

Crist was elected as Florida Governor on the Republican ticket in 2006. He served from January 2007 until January 2011.

He tossed his hat into the ring for U. S. Senate as a no-party candidate in 2012, but Marco Rubio defeated him for the position. After losing the election, Crist began working with the law firm of Morgan & Morgan.

Florida Lawmakers Want FCAT Suspended

Lawmakers in Tallahassee are asking that the Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test (FCAT) be suspended.

After more than 200 schools statewide were docked for unusually low third grade reading scores, the Florida Department of Education announced it messed up with errors in the grading process.

Tampa Congresswoman Kathy Castor is calling on the federal government to investigate how the errors happened.

The mishap may have contributed to the resignation of Florida Education Commissioner, Gerard Robinson.

State Representative Alan Williams wants a special session to overhaul the test. He said the test needs to be changed so test scores to not determine school grades, teacher pay or student advancement.
Former Educator And Church First Lady Dies Suddenly

Ms. Altamese Saunders, an educator and church leader, died suddenly on July 26th, two days after attending a concert with her family in Clearwater. She was 83.

Her daughter, Karen Saunders, said her mother’s death came as a shock to the entire family, because her doctor had just given her a “clean bill of health” on July 19th during a visit.

“She was already planning her 84th birthday in October, because she knew it was a big visit,” said Karen.

Affectionately called “Grams” by family members, Ms. Saunders was a lifelong resident of Tampa. She was educated in the Hillsborough County School System, first at Helping Hand Day Nursery, then at Harlem Academy, where her mother was a classroom teacher, and her grandmother, Christine A. Meacham (the elementary school was named in her honor), was principal.

Ms. Saunders was a stalwart Diamond Life member of the Sigma Theta Sorority with 64 years of continuous service. Upon returning to Tampa, Ms. Saunders taught in Plant City, and received tenure at what was then College Hill (now J.W. Lockhart) Elementary. She retired form Robert E. Lee Elementary with 38 years of service.

Ms. Saunders married Jasper Saunders in 1952, and the couple remained husband and wife for 53-1/2 years. Rev. Saunders passed away in 2005. Ms. Saunders is the mother of 3 daughters and one son, and has 6 grandchildren.
Health Care Law's Birth Control Benefit Begins

On Wednesday, August 1, the no-cost birth control and improved preventative care coverage was among eight new health care benefits under the Affordable Care Act (ACA) that went into effect for women in America. It is estimated that 47 million women will benefit from the low or no cost contraceptives, breast-feeding supplies, screenings for sexually transmitted infections, counseling for domestic violence, breast and pelvic exam check-ups, pap smear tests and prenatal care.

Many of the new female health care provisions under ACA are not controversial. However, one new rule requiring employers to provide no cost contraception to their employees is already drawing legal challenges.

The Obama administration had hoped to avoid such lawsuits, especially from religious institutions and universities, after they changed the original law's language to give such organizations a one-year extension while a compromise could be reached.

Changes In Disabled Parking Permits Take Place October 1

On Monday, October 1st, several new laws will take effect. One of those laws pertains to the Disabled Parking Permits. Currently, the permanent disability permit is blue and the temporary permit is red. The new law will not affect the red, temporary permit or anyone with disabled (wheelchair) license plates.

The changes require that all persons in need of a permanent disabled parking permit must submit an application completed and signed within the last 12 months by a certified medical provider.

Doug Belden, Hillsborough County Tax Collector said, "This new law change means we will see an increase in customers visiting the Tax Collector's offices and since the blue four-year permit is issued free of charge, it will result in an increase in operational cost to the office."

Entrepreneur Offers Alternative Christian Entertainment

BY IRIS B. HOLTON Sentinel City Editor

The Alternative Christian Entertainment (TACE) organization has offered a different atmosphere to Christians has been in existence since 2010. The organization targets a segment of the population, but others are welcome.

Greg Brown, founder of TACE, said the organization is not limited to just Christians, but “For people who want to socialize, but who don’t like the bar scene.

Brown said the organization doesn’t have a permanent home yet, but has recently been meeting at the Tampa Club, 101 E. Kennedy Blvd., on the 42nd Floor. It typically meets on the first Friday of the month.

On Saturday, August 11th, at 6 p.m., Brown will be one of TACE sponsors an alternative to the club scene to Christians as well as members of the general community.

Brown said TACE generally targets the 18 to 35 age group. However, older people in the age range of 65 to 70, have come out to enjoy themselves. The attendees have also come from surrounding counties as well.

Brown said he initially had a vision to create the organization during a business class. “We were talking about ideas and I had a vision of bringing something unique to Tampa. Others have tried it in the past, but were unsuccessful.

“It started out as a “First Friday” type of venue with about 30 people. God gave me a vision and He has certainly provided.”

TACE combines faith with entertainment, music, the arts, social, and professional networking.

A native of Fort Lauderdale, Brown moved to Tampa in 2001 to attend the University of South Florida. He graduated with a Master’s Degree in Civil Engineering.

Brown currently teaches at Hillsborough Community College.

A member of Exciting Central Tampa Baptist Church, Brown is single and the father of 1 daughter. He enjoys spending time with his family, outdoor activities and working out.

Health Department Official Reacts To Stolen Patient Information

BY IRIS B. HOLTON Sentinel City Editor

The Hillsborough County Health Department recently changed the way methods are printed. The purpose of the change follows on the heels of a breach of security.

Steve Huard, Public Information Officer for the Hillsborough County Health Department, said, the information was removed from the facility on or about February 15, 2012, by an employee.

However, the department became aware of the potential breach on May 25, 2012. Huard said a small police department in Georgia made a traffic stop and arrested a couple in the vehicle. As the officers searched the car, they discovered the illegally obtained documents. He declined to provide the names of the individual suspect because the case was forwarded to a federal law enforcement agency for investigation.

However, he did say the employee was discharged.

Huard said once the department was notified, the 311 individuals whose information may have been compromised were immediately contacted.

He stated that although no financial information was taken, information such as the person’s full name, date of birth, social security number, and patient identification number were included in the printout.

In addition to letters, the individuals were also offered a year of credit monitoring for those affected.

Huard said this is the first time, since he became an employee that something of this nature has happened. He further said that preventative measures. The employees can no longer print out the person’s personal information.

“They can print about as much information that goes on a mailing label, which is very general, such as the name and address of the person.

Huard said the State of Florida, the Florida Department of Health, and the Hillsborough County Health Department are fully committed to safeguarding all confidential information.
Couple To Remarry
48 Years After Divorce

Roland Davis and Lena Henderson will be married on Saturday. Both are 85-years-old.

On Saturday, Ms. Lena Henderson and Roland Davis will exchange wedding vows. Four generations of family members plan to attend the ceremony.

This is not the first marriage for either of them. They met as teenagers in Chattanooga, Tennessee. They became the parents of four children. However, after twenty years of marriage, they were divorced.

Both remarried and went on with their lives. But, they kept up with each other’s lives through their children.

The first time they saw each other since their divorce in 1964, was in 1996 when they both attended a funeral. Davis and his wife lived in Colorado. Ms. Henderson, a widow, lived in Buffalo, New York.

Davis’ wife died in January and during the spring, he proposed to Ms. Henderson over the telephone and she accepted.

A justice of the peace performed the first marriage ceremony the first time. This time, the couple will have a church wedding, followed by a reception.

Take Team Gold By ‘Whopping’ Five Points

LONDON—The Americans lived up to their considerable hype Tuesday, routing Russia and everybody else on the way to their first Olympic women's team gymnastics title since 1996. Their score of 183.596 was a whopping five points ahead of Russia, and they were so far ahead their last event, floor exercise, was more like a coronation.

Romania won the bronze.

Douglas, McKayla Maroney, Alexandra Raisman and Kyla Ross.

The Americans stood at the center of the flow, clapping, cheering and basking in a golden glow. When the score for captain Aly Raisman flashed, the Americans screamed and a chant of "U-S-A! U-S-A!" rang out around the arena. The women held up their index fingers to the cameras — as if anyone had ever had any doubt.

"We knew we could do it, we just had to pull out all the stops," Raisman said.

Carmelo Anthony: ‘We Can’t Duplicate’ 1992 Dream Team

NBA superstar and veteran USA basketball player Carmelo Anthony played down pressure to match up with past Dream Teams, but acknowledged that the memory of letting the gold slip away still haunts him.

Anthony played on the Olympic gold medal-winning 2000 team in Beijing, but it’s the disappointing bronze medal that Americans took home at the 2004 Athens Games that drives him to victory.

"That feeling is in the back of my mind. That’s a motivating factor for myself and for some of the other guys that were on that team," Anthony told TODAY’s Matt Lauer Wednesday.

Floyd Mayweather, Jr. Is Set To Regain His Freedom On Friday

Sharing several weeks off his 87-day sentence for good behavior, domestic abuser “Pretty Boy” Floyd Mayweather, Jr. is set to be released on Friday from the Clark County Detention Center in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Mayweather (43-0, 26 KOs), the longstanding WBC world welterweight champion who defeated powerful Puerto Rican icon Miguel Cotto by unanimous decision to acquire the WBA world light-welterweight belt on Cinco de Mayo at the MGM Grand in “Sin City,” has been living in a segregated 7-by-12-foot cell since June 1 for beating his lost sweetheart while two of their children watched in September 2010.

Battling allegedly injurious food and unacceptable tap water that left The Ring “Fighter of the Year” in 1998 and 2007 physically, and emotionally, deteriorating, Mayweather plans on immediately doffing a blue jumpsuit to restart a grueling training regimen in the squared circle.
Gabrielle Douglas of the United States celebrates after winning the gold medal in the Artistic Gymnastics Women's Individual All-Around final on Day 6 of the London 2012 Olympic Games.

Gabby Douglas led the U.S. women's gymnastics team to gold in the team event Tuesday. Thursday, she took home her own — an individual all-around gold medal.

Douglas posted a winning score of 62.232 to edge Russia's Viktoria Komova and Aliya Mustafina. Fellow American Aly Raisman finished fourth.

By the time the London Games are over, Douglas should be one of the most marketable Olympic athletes not named Michael Phelps or Ryan Lochte.

Douglas competes in one of America's favorite sports. The "Magnificent Seven" first captured America's hearts in 1996. Thursday, all eyes were on Gabby. Coming into today, America wanted to see these two talented young ladies bring home gold in one of the staple events in the Summer Games.

Will Less Be More For Josh Freeman?

Josh Freeman then and now.

By the time the London Games are over, Douglas should be one of the most marketable Olympic athletes not named Michael Phelps or Ryan Lochte. Douglas competes in one of America's favorite sports. The "Magnificent Seven" first captured America's hearts in 1996. Thursday, all eyes were on Gabby. Coming into today, America wanted to see these two talented young ladies bring home gold in one of the staple events in the Summer Games.

It wouldn't be accurate to say Douglas came out of nowhere this U.S. Gymnastics team was lauded and hyped coming into the Games. But she wasn't exactly a household named star either.

"I know Ozzie and them know I want to be here. We will get that done when it's time to cross that bridge. I'm good with football right now. I know the Ravens know I want to be here. I wouldn't give myself to the football team like I do if I didn't want to be here."

Douglas weighed 237 pounds at the start of camp 20 pounds less than a year ago, and with a better looking physique.

Freeman, 24, is going into his fourth year and realizes you have to be in the right type or shape to be successful.

Freeman has consistently completed more than 61% of his passes, but his touchdowns have dropped from 25 to 16 last season while his interceptions rose from six to 22.

ED REED

OWINGS MILLS, Md. — Baltimore Ravens safety Ed Reed delivered a much different message Wednesday than his cryptic offseason comments where he hinted at a potential holdout and contemplated retirement.

Now, the former NFL Defensive Player of the Year says he wants to remain with the Ravens on a long-term basis and has communicated that desire to general manager Ozzie Newsom.

"Talks have already been there," Reed said. "I know Ozzie and them know I want to be here. We will get that done when it's time to cross that bridge. I'm good with football right now. I know the Ravens know I want to be here. I wouldn't give myself to the football team like I do if I didn't want to be here."

NEW ORLEANS — A bartender who claimed that Academy Award-winning actor Cuba Gooding Jr. pushed her doesn’t plan to pursue criminal charges against him, managers at a New Orleans restaurant said Wednesday.

On Tuesday, police issued an arrest warrant on a misdemeanor charge of municipal battery for the 44-year-old Gooding. Police say the bartender at the century-old Old Absinthe House told them that Gooding became upset after patrons started asking him to pose for photos with them at about 3 a.m. that morning. The bartender told investigators that Gooding pushed her after she asked him to calm down and again after she told him he should leave and that police had been called.

The Carter’s have upgraded—for the summer at least. Jay-Z and Beyoncé are renting out a lavish 31,000-square-foot mansion in the Hamptons.

The couple is renting the home in Bridgehampton, also known as the Sandcastle, for $400,000 for the month of August. The property was built by Hamptons developer Joe Farrell, and is currently on the market for $43.5 million. Sitting on 11-acres of land, the sprawling estate features virtual golf, a rock-climbing wall, a full bar, a recording studio, and a two lane bowling alley.

50 Cent Signs First Fighters

50 Cent is one busy man. Besides the whole rapping thing, the Queens MC is also an officially licensed boxing promoter and has signed Australian IBF featherweight champ Bill Dib to a contract with TMT (The Money Team) Promotions, reports Ring TV. Dib joins a couple of fighters who are already rolling with the Money Team; former featherweight titleholder Yuriorkis Gamboa and super middleweight Andre Dirrell. 50 has already made a stir in the boxing world, recently going at rival Oscar De La Hoya, and Floyd Mayweather Jr.’s current promoter, on Twitter.

Man Cleared By Innocence Project Charged With Attempted Murder

BY IRIS B. HOLTON
Sentinel City Editor

For 24 years, a Florida Department of Corrections identification number identified Alan Crotzer. But, with the help of DNA testing and the Innocence Project, Crotzer was released from prison.

Two years later, he received $23 million dollars for his wrongful conviction. A native of St. Petersburg, Crotzer relocated to Tallahassee after his release from jail.

Crotzer was arrested again on Monday, and charged with attempted first-degree murder. He is accused of firing at least eight bullets into the vehicle of another Tallahassee resident.

According to the Tallahassee Police Department, the incident took place Sunday night. The unidentified victim told police he and Crotzer had a confrontation a few months before over the sale of a CD.

The victim told police Crotzer displayed two handguns and threatened him at the time. He had no other contact with Crotzer until Sunday night.

The victim said he was leaving a Best Buy store when he noticed Crotzer's vehicle. He said the Florida license plate said "RIKA."

The victims said as he left the parking lot he noticed a black Dodge Avenger following him.

The victim said he was driving on Apalachee Parkway when the driver of the Avenger "moved up alongside the victim's vehicle, the suspect lowered the front passenger window of the Avenger... The suspect began shooting a handgun through the open passenger window at the victim while both vehicles were traveling at approximately 40 MPH. The victim's driver window was struck and he felt a sharp pain in his left arm. As the shots continued, he felt pain in his left hip. The victim lost sight of the suspect vehicle when he stopped, the probable cause affidavit stated.

The victim, who was hit by the gunfire, told police he believes the suspect emptied the gun before driving away.

During the investigation, police identified Crotzer as a possible suspect. The victim immediately identified Crotzer as the person who shot him from a photograph identification package of six pictures.

A warrant was issued and Crotzer was arrested and charged with attempted first-degree murder.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 3, 2012
When encouraging people to be an organ donor, Pastor Julius Wynn (Highland M. B. Church, Tampa) always makes reference to a bumper sticker that defines his stance on the issue. "Don't take your organs to heaven; heaven knows we need them here."

In January 2008, Pastor Wynn received the gift of a new kidney from a member of his congregation. "I was amazed that someone would do that for me," said Pastor Wynn of his living kidney donor, Ms. Martha Kitchens.

Though Pastor Wynn received his kidney from a living donor, he realizes how important it is for people to sign up to be a deceased donor. This is illustrated through his work with LifeLink of Florida (the local organ and tissue recovery organization) and the message on his favorite bumper sticker. "

Pastor Wynn was diagnosed with kidney failure due to high blood pressure. According to the Center for Disease Control, Blacks develop high blood pressure more often and at a younger age than Whites and other ethnic minorities. One of the risk factors associated with this disease is kidney failure. Currently, there are more than 80,000 Americans awaiting a kidney and/or pancreas transplant and many are in need due to high blood pressure complications.

Since his transplant, Pastor Wynn has a new lease on life. He was able to play golf at the renowned Pinehurst Resort in North Carolina, witness his daughter's graduation from college and obtain his Doctorate of Education in Leadership.

"There were days when I couldn't go to work or get out of bed because the bad fluids had taken over," Pastor Wynn said of his life before he received his transplant. "Now I have an opportunity to do regular things that a lot of times people take for granted."

For information on becoming a living donor, individuals should contact the transplant center at Tampa General Hospital. To learn more about deceased donation, please visit www.DonateLifeFlorida.org. One person can potentially save the lives of eight people through organ donation.

Group Wants To Extend Historic Boundary Into East Tampa

Again, an effort to declare the area from Columbus Drive to 21st Avenue a historic district has resumed.

East Tampa Business and Civic Association CEO, Di-anne Hart, said she has attended meetings with the group, and she opposes their effort.

“We asked them to meet with us at the YET Center, and we told them we aren’t interested in changing our boundaries,” City Councilman Frank Reddick said. He opposes extending such a boundary, which would restrict planning and zoning in the area.

“What they don’t understand is the people in this area don’t have the money to bring their homes up to the codes of the Historic Preservation group,” Reddick said. “I think they are going to have a meeting with the City Council in the form of a workshop to see what can be done.

Whatever they decide, we don’t agree with their plans,” Reddick said.

Councilman Frank Reddick said he knows the VM Ybor Neighborhood Association holds meetings to discuss strategy and how this would benefit their community.

“Once they have settled on a course of action, the issue will eventually come before the council,” Reddick said.

“I think it would pose a lot of problems for the people north of Columbus Drive, because the money is just not there to make this kind of move possible,” Reddick said.

Councilman Reddick said if the group is successful in getting the boundaries changed, it would put them in better shape for funding through the Historical Preservation Act. Businesses and residents will have to find the money to come up to code, and there is limited funding for that.

VM Ybor Neighborhood Association President, Kim Headland, said they had an information meeting in June with city officials present and they discussed how the extension of the boundary would benefit VM Ybor.

“The area being proposed for the boundary extension is within my neighborhood association area,” Headland said.

“If you want to do basic maintenance on your home or business, you don’t have to bring them up to the historic code. When you’re doing something significant, then you have to bring it up to the historic code. There are negatives and positives involved,” Headland said.

Headland said existing homes and businesses will not have to change anything to meet the historic code.

“There are tax credits, low-interest loans, and grants available to those who qualify and want to make extreme renovations to their homes or businesses,” Headland said.

“We have folks south of Columbus Drive who’ve used the grants to rehab the exterior of their homes, and they are happy with the process,” Headland said.

Pain Of Losing Her Son Still Lingers

BY LEON B. CREWS
Sentinel Staff Writer

On August 1, 2004, Warren Mitchell was returning home after enjoying a little night out on the town. His mother, Wanda Conaway, said she knows he was looking forward to seeing his son, Warren, Jr.

Mitchell never made it home that early morning. He was shot to death in his car in the area of Columbus Drive and Kathleen Street. No one was ever arrested for Mitchell’s death, and Mrs. Conaway said every time she looks at her grandson, the pain of losing his father is tough to deal with.

“It’s been 8 years, and I know Tampa Police are doing the best they can,” said Mrs. Conaway.

“I just believe there is someone out there who knows what happened, and why. They know who killed my son. All I ask of them is for the sake of his son and this family, please step up and let the police know what you know.”

Mrs. Conaway has vowed to never give up hope that whoever is responsible for her son’s death, will one day be brought to justice.

UNION ALLEGING HART DOESN'T PROTECT DRIVERS

BY LEON B. CREWS
Sentinel Staff Writer

On Thursday, July 19th, HART Bus operator, Colin Brown, was assaulted as he drove the #2 bus route. A female patron entered the bus, paid her fare, and then attacked Brown, hitting him several times, but HART staff was not available and did not respond.

Brown was able to finally open his seatbelt and get out of the driver’s seat. He then pushed the patron off the bus and she just sat on a bench at the bus shelter as nothing had happened.

Brown then called dispatch from his cell phone and informed HART he had been severely assaulted, and he needed police, a road supervisor and medical help.

Brown was transported to the hospital by ambulance. He then pushed the patron who had attacked him into her riding the bus on a couple of routes I’ve driven on. We’ve never had a conversation, and I don’t know her name or anything about her.

He then pushed the patron about the incident, or check on his condition to see how he was doing.

"Mr. Brown has a severe concussion, and it seems no one from the authority cares."

"Brown is not the only driver that’s been attacked. We have drivers being assaulted all the time, but when it’s a driver of color, little or nothing is done about it. They are hiding how they are wasting the money of taxpayers."

Stuckey said the union has filed several unfair labor practice claims on behalf of the drivers, asking HART to treat the drivers like they are human.

As far as the incident with Brown is concerned, they told us he knew the woman, but even if that’s true, that’s no excuse for him being attacked.

HART Public Information Office spokesperson, Marcia Mejia, said the incident is under internal investigation.

"We take these incidents seriously. We did test the vehicle to make sure the communication equipment was working properly, and on Thursday, it was working, so the bus was put back out on route. Safety is number one for us."

Mejia said as far as they are concerned, this is not a widespread problem, and the incidents are pretty much isolated.

"But, one is too many for us. We have safeguards for crime deterrents. It isn’t an epidemic. This was the only incident where a driver was actually injured."

"Mr. Brown is out on leave, and we are currently negotiating with the union on a new contract."

Brown said he’s currently receiving Workman’s Compensation, and has not set a date when he will be returning to work.

"Because I was strapped into my seat at the time of the attack, I couldn’t really defend myself. I received several blows to my head, and I messed up my back trying to move around in my seat."

"My attacker didn’t seem angry at first, but something set her off, and I don’t know what it was."

Brown said he started driving for HART 8 years ago, and this is the first time something like this has happened to him.

"As a driver, this is not something you see coming. You don’t prepare yourself from being attacked by a patron. That is not something you’re trained to deal with when you start working here, and no one ever talks about it."

Brown said he does feel HART could do a better job protecting the drivers by listening more to what they are trying to tell them, and be more concerned about their safety than increasing ridership.

"I think if they put certain policies in place, it would stop this kind of violence."

"I will say it could have been a lot worse, because the bus was pretty full when I was attacked. The response time of a supervisor coming to my aid should have been a lot better, and it was only after I used my cell phone when one actually showed up."

Brown said he doesn’t think it’s fair that he’s being investigated to see if he instigated the incident.

"There are rumors going around that the woman who attacked me was my ex-girlfriend. She was not my girlfriend, and I only recall seeing her riding the bus on a couple of routes I’ve driven on. We’ve never had a conversation, and I don’t know her name or anything about her."

Life is what you make it. Life is what you determine it to be. If you think negatively; that is how you will interpret life. If you are positive and optimistic you will see every situation as an opportunity. Do you see life as half empty or half full? Do you focus on what you have or do not have?

This week's lesson from Psalm 146 gives the reader a reason and understanding of how to live life. The psalmist suggests that instead of living life with complaints, there is a lot to praise God for.

In verse one he recommends and writes to the singer to praise the Lord. His mandate is to praise the Lord! He puts the idea of praise in two different ways. He says, "I will praise the Lord all my life; I will sing praise to my God as long as I live" (vs. 2).

By using this method he wants you to know how important it is to praise. As long as you live you must praise. Praise is determined by the fact that you are alive not the quality of life you live. Some people want to praise as long as things are going well, they have money, they have a job, or their family is doing well. That is praise because of quality of life.

Here it is suggested that you praise because you have life! As long as you live and have breath, praise the Lord. One of the reasons you can praise God is not because of what you need or want God to do; but you have a reason to praise because of what you have received or the justice that has been extended to you.

In verse three he writes in the hymn, "do not put your trust in princes, in mortal men, who cannot save." Princes are those who represent the governing authority. Mortal men are men who are frail and have some shortcoming. It is not wise to put your trust and faith in people who can fail and not save you.

"Blessed is he whose help is in the Lord God of Jacob. He is the psalmist's help in the Lord his God" (vs. 3). When you know that the Lord is your helper the situation you are faced with does not seem too difficult to handle. This gives reason to praise! You can't help but be blessed when you have God on your side and helping you whatever you are faced with.

In the singing of praise to God, the psalmist identifies various reasons why. God looks out for the oppressed, feeds the hungry, set prisoners free, restores sight, and He frustrates the ways of the wicked (vs. 7-9).

These tasks that God completes are not limited to those who find themselves in these situations physically. You can be in each of these spiritually as well. You can praise as long as you live regardless of these situations because the Lord is looking out for you. God will fight for you! He will make sure that you receive the justice that is due you.

When you consider the words of this song, you will discover that you have more reason to praise than you realize. As long as you live you have a God on your side who does not fail; this is reason to praise. Your life is not empty and your situation is not beyond hope and repair. Keep praising God and you will see that God will change your situation.

Don't give up on God, because He won't give up on you!

Supervisor Of Elections Office Corrects Mistake On Mailed Ballots

Two weeks ago, the Office of the Hillsborough County Supervisor of Elections mailed absentee ballots to residents in one New Tampa community. The ballots contained a mistake that left and right side of the race for the Democratic District 63 race for the Florida House. The race pits Mark Danish against Z. J. Hafeez.

Travis Abercrombie, spokesperson for the Hillsborough County Supervisor of Elections Office said the mistake was caught and the corrected ballots were mailed out on July 18th. He further said that because the mistake was on about 166 ballots, the error can be tracked. "We mailed out the corrected ballots the next day. We can track the status of those corrected ballots to make sure they were correct. "We're on top of the mistake and we have taken steps to follow up the first mail out."

The duo said selecting the Crowbar Club for their show was great, because unlike other clubs, it is specifically set up for entertainment. As far as the album, “Refreshing,” is concerned, they worked on it for a year.

“A lot of thinking and effort went into this album. We took a step to see what was going on, but we’re so polished, we know how to put our product out there.

“Everything flows from talking with each other. We also visit other clubs to see what the other acts are doing, and how the crowd is reacting to their performances.”

J-Roc and Jus Henry said they don’t worry about taking risks.

“People are appreciative about not following trends.

People don’t think not to follow the crowd. They want to be a part of the new, the old and the new, with members ranging in age from their 20s to their 60s.”

The duo thanks PlayStation for sponsoring their show, and there will be a PS3 Bundle Raffle that will include a 16GB PS3 and 5 games. The first 200 people that enter the raffle will receive a PlayStation gift bag.

WASHINGTON -- The Obama administration has launched the first steps of an ambitious plan to dramatically improve academic achievement among African-American students from the "cradle to career." President Obama signed an executive order last week, which established the first ever White House Initiative on Educational Excellence for African-Americans.

The new initiative will coordinate with federal agencies, various partners and communities nationwide. Its charge will include seeking and sharing evidence-based best practices’ around the critical issue of Black student achievement. The initiative has sweeping goals. They include providing African-American students with greater access to high-level, rigorous course work and support services; developing and retaining greater numbers of top-notch African-American teachers and principals; reducing dropout rates and increasing college access; and expanding access to quality adult education, literacy, and technical programs.

President Obama recently told an audience at the National Urban League convention in New Orleans, he wanted to ensure "every child has greater access to a complete and inclusive education from the time they’re born," with pathways to high school and college graduation, and a productive career.

Blogger Whoouted ‘Wit ness 9’ in George Zimmerman Case Spe w Racist Venom

The blogger who revealed the name, address, and phone of a cousin of George Zimmerman, the man charged with killing Trayvon Martin, has carefully guarded his own privacy. Known on the Internet only as "Sundance Cracker," the anonymous blogger has posted potentially embarrassing personal information about several figures in the Martin case — people who fellow posters at "Cracker’s" website derisively call "Trayvonites."

The punishment for supporting Martin’s family, or for opposing Zimmerman, who has a following on some conservative blogs, is often to have intimate details, including photos, posted to the site.

This month, the site published personal information about the woman known publicly as Witness 9 — a female cousin of Zimmerman, who contacteded Sanford, Florida police two days after Zimmerman shot and killed Martin, a Miami teenager visiting Sanford with his father. She told the officer she spoke with Zimmerman and his family dislike Black people, and that from the time she was eight years old, until around sixteen, Zimmerman — who was two years older — sexually molested her.

Chicago Public Schools Partners With Groupon For Low Income Kids In Chicago

CHICAGO - Because the children are our future and apparently the Chicago Public School system hasn’t done its homework on profitable partnerships, Groupon has announced it’s now taking donations on CPS’ behalf to provide school supplies to low-income students.

Basically, people can pony up $11 or $18 to give kids basic back-to-school kits or a kit and a backpack, respectivley.

A lot has changed for Groupon since last year when CPS first partnered up with the daily deal company for a similar opportunity to be charitable. Last year, more than 1,200 students received kits when approximately $15,000 was donated through Groupon.

 Moffitt Seeking Participants For Free Colon Cancer Screening

Moffitt Cancer Center in Tampa is recruiting for a research study to increase colon cancer screening in the Black community throughout Hillsborough County.

The study, led by Dr. Clement Gweede, is called Increasing Access to Colon Cancer Testing for Blacks, or I-Act. Colon cancer occurs in the colon or rectum. About 90 percent of colorectal cancers are diagnosed in people ages 50-75. It is the third most commonly diagnosed and the third leading cause of cancer death in the Black community. However, it is one of the most curable cancers if caught early.

For the best chance of early detection, people should have regular colorectal cancer screenings beginning at age 50. If you have a strong family history, discuss your risk with your doctor. Dr. Gweede and his team are recruiting 500 Black men and women from Hillsborough County to participate in the study.

Dr. Gweede and his team are recruiting 500 Black men and women from Hillsborough County to participate in the study.

"This is an exciting opportunity for you to take charge of your own health and to help reduce the burden of colorectal cancer in the Black community," Dr. Gweede said.

3 Grilling Tips That Can Save Your Life

The Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics mentions these barbecue safety suggestions:

- Buy two sets of grilling tools (one for raw meat and one for cooked meat), as well as a meat thermometer to make sure your food is thoroughly cooked.
- Grill lean meats to avoid flame flares caused by fat drippings.
- Don’t allow your food to become charred. Some studies suggest charred meat may be linked to cancer. Let your meat marinate for a few hours before cooking to help reduce the chances of charring.
Habits That Hurt Women Over 40

Part II
Drinking Too Much

Women are at greater risk for developing alcohol-related problems, including breast cancer, heart disease, alcoholism, and alcoholic hepatitis. Women, on average, weigh less than men, and have less water in their bodies than men — water helps dilute the alcohol. Hormone and aging also affect how they metabolize alcohol. More women than men show alcohol-related problems later in life, according to the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

Health Note: The federal Dietary Guidelines for Americans call for 1 drink per day for women, compared with 2 drinks per day for men. Red wine is full of antioxidants.

Dieting Too Much And Dieting Too Little

Many American women simply do not eat the right things, and their unbalanced diets lead to obesity, diabetes, high blood pressure, anorexia, heart disease, and other health problems.

Health Note: The middle diet ground is a healthful diet that doesn’t skimp on nutrition or overlook empty calories. Nutritionists emphasize focusing on a mainly plant-based diet featuring whole grains, whole fruits and vegetables, healthy oils, and fish — what’s generally known as the Mediterranean Diet. Its anti-inflammatory, high-antioxidant benefits include a 33% reduced risk of developing metabolic syndrome.

Being A Caregiver

The average caregiver in the U.S. is a woman in her late 40s. Many are looking after both children and/or husbands and aging parents. With little time for adequate self-care, they’re prone to “caregiving stress syndrome,” a condition linked to a medical chart full of health problems, including obesity, diabetes, heart disease, high cholesterol, dementia, and back strain. More than 70% of family caregivers show signs of depression.

Health Note: Caregivers are twice as likely to manage stress by smoking, binge drinking and emotional eating. When stress is managed with good self-care and time off, many caregivers report a deeply enriching experience. Some caregivers even show improved longevity, better memory, and better physical strength, as well as a sense of meaning and purpose.

Unprotected Sex

Although young adult women are most vulnerable to sexually transmitted diseases (STDs), rates are rising in their mothers’ generation as midlife women reenter the dating scene after divorce or widowhood.

Health Note: Barrier-method contraceptives and regular testing dramatically lower the risk of disease for those reentering the sex scene after a long, monogamous, relationship.

5 Health Benefits Of Collard Greens

1. The Antioxidant Benefits Of Collard Greens. As an excellent source of vitamin C, beta-carotene, and manganese, and a good source of vitamin E, collard greens provide us with 4 core conventional antioxidants.

2. The Anti-inflammatory Benefits Of Collard Greens. As an excellent source of vitamin K and a good source of omega-3 fatty acids (in the form of alpha-linolenic acid, or ALA), collard greens provide us with two hallmark anti-inflammatory nutrients.

3. Collard Greens And Cardiovascular Support. Of particular interest here has been the isothiocyanate (ITC) sulforaphane, which is made from glucoraphanin (a glucosinolate) found in collard greens. Not only does this ITC trigger anti-inflammatory activity in our cardiovascular system, it may also be able to help prevent and even possibly help reverse blood vessel damage.

4. Collard Greens And Digestive Support. The fiber content of collard greens — over 5 grams in every cup — makes this cruciferous vegetable a natural choice for digestive system support. You’re going to get 85% of your Daily Value for fiber from only 200 calories’ worth of collard greens!

5. Other Benefits. Current and potentially promising research is underway to examine the benefits of collard greens in relationship to our risk of the following inflammation-related conditions: Crohn’s disease, inflammatory bowel disease, insulin resistance, irritable bowel syndrome, metabolic syndrome, obesity, rheumatoid arthritis, type 2 diabetes, and ulcerative colitis.
Lakeland Couple
Exchange Wedding Vows

New beginnings are not just for the young! On the evening of Saturday, June 23, 2012, Charles Brooks, 93, and Dorothy R. Dunbar, 88, plighted their love, one to another. The ceremony was held in the C.H. Bolden Fellowship Hall of New Mt. Zion Missionary Baptist Church, in Lakeland, Reverend Kendrix J. Gardner, Sr., pastor.

The opening song of the ceremony was rendered by renowned performing artist, Shawn Brown. The flower girl, Jaden Giles, decorated the path before the bride’s procession.

A prayer was offered up by Evangelist Rodney Giles, who also served as the Officiator of the Words of Commitment, Exchanging of Vows/Giving of Rings and the Presentation of Husband and Wife. Beautiful solos were sung by Mr. Alan Bolden and Ms. Patricia Jones.

After the benediction and blessing of the food, the newlyweds and their guests enjoyed a dinner of an array of scrumptious foods.

Among the numerous guest witnessing this joyous occasion were the children of the bride: Isaiah Dunbar and Nat Lewis and the children of the groom: Marva Brooks, Carol Brooks-Harris, Errol Brooks, Beverly Brooks-Boatwright, Charles Brooks, and Kevin Brooks; Jessie Newman, Ashley Oldham-Jackson, Dimiah Patterson, Ayana DaSilve, Larry Mitchell, granddaughter of the groom, Novella Johnson; and Archie and will be the Colton Meadows. Congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks!
