House Scorched, Arson Suspected

Police received a call at 3:01 E. Chelos Monday morning to investigate a suspicious house fire. They were met by Irene Holmes, 28, who told police that she was awakened by the smell of smoke and got up and put the fire out.

The house had been scorched and police found a rag that smelled of gasoline in front of her house and some unidentified persons moved it sometime between 9:00 p.m. and 5:30 a.m. Monday.

A 1964 Chevy Impala belonging to Mr. Bertha Anderson, 3033 29th Avenue and valued at $300, was taken from in front of the National Beauty School, 3034 29th St., and reported to police.

Miss Holmes told police that she had been threatened by an ex-boyfriend who said he would burn her house down if she left him. He is her ex-husband and police said "he" told them.

Confab Black Caucus Plans On Africa

"Black Intelect" Course Refused

STANFORD, Calif. — Dr. William Shockley Monday was refused authority to teach a course on Stanford University on his theory that blacks are less intelligent than whites.

Lincoln E. Moses, dean of graduate studies, said he vetoed the proposal because of the potential effect of physical, economic, and related factors on crime. Moses, on the other hand, refers to factors external to the individual. We speak of the causative nature and development of the true reasons for their differences, he said. The external factors give us no clue as to whether or not the law is being broken.

"The true reasons for their differences are an important psychological and social factor in the classification of human beings, he said."

Legal and Psychiatric Concepts

There are tremendous differences between legal and psychiatric concepts of insanity. The law has taken it upon itself to define insanity. Without wishing to reflect in any way upon the intelligence and ability that has gone into the making of laws, it must be remembered that, from the standpoint of psychiatry, the law creates the laws we are bound by.

A trained psychiatrist would give a more inclusive definition of psychosis without using the expressions "difference between right and wrong" and "irresistible impulses," which, to him, are meaningless. To the psychiatrist, psychosis is a manifestation of a state involving all sorts of factors, lacking both adaptation and breaking adjustment. The problem of right and wrong and that of irresistible impulse may be included, but this is not at all necessary.

In practice, law has but one term — insanity to cover mental abnormalities. The law attacks the particular instance virtually disregarding the criminal. Psychiatry approaches this crime by way of the criminal. It attacks the crime, but the criminal behind the crime. The law emphasizes intent, largely disregarding relevant factors. The retina looks upon intent merely as the surface expression of underlying motives. In criminal law, just as the deed is regarded as more important than the force, causation is considered more important than motivation.

Causation can be traced to factors external to the individual. We speak of the causative nature and development of the true reasons for their differences.
OFFICIALS DISCUSSING RECRUITMENT OF BLACK HIGHWAY PATROLMEN

In the last decade as integration began to take hold in the south and north, some companies started showing a percentage of blacks on their rolls, the State Highway Patrol still lacked black faces among over 800 troopers.

Since that time three black men have been hired, two as troopers, and one as a dispatch-er in the tallahassee office. But Charles I. Jones, Executive Director of the Florida Highway Patrol in Tallahassee, met with Jones to discuss ways of getting blacks on the highway patrol force.

Since the Highway Patrol has never put out a recruiting program Jones was able to convince Glenn R. Baker that this is what should be done. "I told him that they (the patrol) need to bend a little, and try just as hard to get blacks in as it was tried to keep blacks out years ago," Jones said.

Meeting with Jones and Tallahassee Patrolmen were Mason Williams, the Tallahassee Patrolmen, and one as a dispatch-er in the Tallahassee office, and one as a dispatch-er in the Florida State Highway Patrol. In talking with Jones, he told Jones that the patrol cars issued to troopers are their own personal property. Other outstanding fringe benefits are also offered.

Just returned from a conference in Chicago, I was informed of boxer Jimmy Kilka's illness. He is doing better. Jimmy always talked about the great Muhammad Ali. He believes they're on the same level. He is not the same as Joe Louis. Louis lost his title to Foreman in a few boxers, but he did what he had to do, he backed off. I believe Ali, he's a true fighter, playing the same tough fighter. Said a brother to Louis, "If you want it as a young boxer, he is not your match. But as a professional, he is one of the best." The past few days my thinking was all about the very same thought. This is a great young fighter. He is only 23 years old and is not going to have a problem. Louis and Ali are the same fighter. This is a true fighter, playing the same tough fighter. He is not the same as Joe Louis. Louis lost his title to Foreman in a few rounds, but he did what he had to do, he backed off. I believe Ali, he is a true fighter, playing the same tough fighter. Said a brother to Louis, "If you want it as a young boxer, he is not your match. But as a professional, he is one of the best."
NEW YORK CITY — The subject was Hunger and more than 1,900 black and white women from every walk of life were on hand to discuss ways and means of ending one of America's greatest scourges at the American Hotel.

Assembled at the request of the Black Women's Institute, a subsidiary of the National Council of Negro Women, Inc., the one-day convention entitled "Tell Us from as far away as Texas and California" was spearheaded by Miss Dorothy T. Height, president of the NCNW, the conference was an effort by the organization to focus public attention on the prevalence of hunger.

Dr. Jean Myers, who was one of the convenors of the 1969 White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health, told the luncheon guests that local governments should provide breakfast to poor school children and sponsor summer recreation programs that include free lunches.

"What was outstanding about this first conference, which Miss Height said will be an annual event until hunger is completely eradicated, was the caliber of women who attend, the many interesting working panels. The luncheon read like Who's Who of black women in the nation," Miss Marion Anderson was chairman of the convention.

Led by Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm, who chaired a panel on Day Care, panelists included Mrs. Lillian Benbow, Mrs. Myrna Chapman, Mrs. Isabella J. Jones, Mrs. Mary Dublin Kayebling, Miss Georgia L. McPherson, Miss Jennie Thompson, Dr. Jeanette L. Noble, Miss Linda Rain, Mrs. Wilhelmina Adams, Miss Constance E. Clayton.

Also Mrs. Thelma Dalley, Miss Wilma Scott Haide, Mrs. Ersa H. Poston, Mrs. Lillian Roberts, Mrs. Ethel Sloan, Mrs. Elizabeth K. Proctor, Mrs. Dorothy Tolgan, Mrs. Glaize G. Offerees, Miss Barbara Rode, Mrs. Willie De Fritul, Mrs. Kenneth Greenaway, Miss Maria Poplarado, Mrs. Beatrice Sanders, Dr. Dorothy B. Perdue, Mrs. Patricia Young, Mrs. Mary Gibbs, Mrs. Mattie Price, Mrs. Annie Lawrence, Mrs. LaDonna Harris, Mrs. Rosa Carpenter, Dr. Doris E. Hauser, Miss Helen Harris, Mrs. Linda Morrow, Mrs. Florence Rice, Miss Stephanie Von Drock, Miss Rose Morgan and Mrs. Esther Petrani.

At the luncheon, Miss Marian Anderson welcomed a bevy of data guests that included the late Mary McLeod Bethune, Miss Anna Lord Strauss and Judge Mary Johnson Lowe.

Also Miss Mable K. Siupers, Miss Eleanor French, Edward Grayson Davis, Mrs. Whitney Young, Mrs. Pauline Grant, Mrs. Louisa G. Cowen, Mrs. Joan K. Davison and Miss Idia Lewis.

Since its inception in 1965 by the late Mary McLeod Bethune, the National Council has played a major role in encouraging black women to assume leadership roles. It is composed of a coalition of more than 25 national organizations with an outreach to four million women through-out the nation.

A special surprise award was presented to Miss Anderson by Miss Height as a tribute to her devotion to the cause.

MIMAI — The Democratic Party will initiate a full-scale campaign during the next month to improve employment opportunities for the black and white minorities in Miami Beach.

Convention messenger Richard Murphy said Friday several prominent black leaders including state Representative Grace Cherry and Andrew Mine, the party's national director of minority affairs, will meet with city business leaders this week in an effort to lift the "local apathy towards hiring blacks."

The arrangements committee, which concluded its two-day meeting Friday, stepped into the major by passing a resolution exclaiming its disapproval with existing employment practices in Miami Beach.

"We are definitely unhappy with the local apathy displayed by the city and many hotels in failing to hire minorities, primarily blacks, in reasonable numbers," Murphy declared. "These businesses are making money from the conventions and must take new steps to employ blacks."

Murphy admitted several firms, including Andy Fresh Security Company, have fulfilled the Democratic National Committee's goal for hiring blacks, but "overall we are working to improve employment conditions, particularly in the hotels."

The party's disenchanted with city efforts to upgrade black employment has been given considerable emphasis at the weekly planning sessions.

BIRDS GOTTAFLY

A lot of birds who ought to fly, just don't.

Reader's Digest, every month, is going to be telling you, in full color, about some of these wingers wonders. Maybe they're just like somebody you know. For instance, in the next three months, you'll be meeting birds like The Silver-Tongued Mañana:

- This is the wily bird who's always going to fake that it's air-trip—tomorrow.
- Or consider The Single-Footed Spotted Sandpiper. Never migrates. Always takes the same road to the same beach. A No-Fun bird.
- Then there's The Red-Eyed Roadrunner. Spends all his vacation time driving, parking, and cutting ear stickies.

Get a look at these ground birds and know how the birds fly. And how to avoid being one of these birds. In Reader's Digest. Every month.

YOUNGSTER GETS SICKLE TEST

Nurse Dorothy McPherson, left, keeps a firm grip on Sylvia Simons’ finger to get a bit of blood for a test for Sickle Cell Anemia. This occurred last week at the seven sponsored by the Charnelles Pledge Club at the Sugar Shack.

Mrs. Brim, fourth from left, poses with her five children, Robert James, 8; Mary Peterson, 20; Man­ner, 16; Mattie Mae, 15; Mary Peterson, 20; Mone­fice, 15; Mary Peterson, 16; John Jr., 18; Lake Butler, are married. A three-year-old son, John Jr., has polio. At six weeks old, a daughter, Dorothy Jean, had a touch of polio. All other children are in good health, though, Mrs. Brim said that she is accustom to cooking large quantities of food because of the nine children in her family.

R. takes just a few minutes of conversation with 25 year old Judi Hampton to see how such a young person became a company representative for Mobile Oil Company.

Judi is in Tampa for the final days of a 30 city tour for the oil company talking with consumers through television and radio, as well as organizing on energy and how to save it. She will depart Saturday.

Her extensive traveling is mainly concentrated on the east coast while the other areas are handled by two other representatives. For the consumer, Judi, as she is called by her mother, has put together a 30 tip booklet on ways of saving energy and money.

Several of these tips deal with saving gasoline in your car. Judi says, “Avoid fast gas stations.” “Jackrabbit” starts will overfeed driving. “She adds, “when stopping for more than a minute or turn off your engine. Even a minute’s idling uses more fuel than starting on.

Basketball Banter

Well it's all over including the shooting. The Los Angeles Lakers have proved to one and all that they are the masters in the National Basketball Association. After a stunning first game loss the Lakers with Wilt and Chamberlain wanted to play. Another big factor in the series was that the Knicks couldn't come up with a combination, whereas they had someone to handle Gail Goodrich. Earl Monroe didn't have a chance against Goodrich and Dick Barnett was no better. Wilt Frasier was sensational, even in defeat, and he did his usual, good job on Jerry West. Frasier just may be the best all around basketball player in the game today.

The fact that people don't realize it, but Happy Hairston was a great big help to Chamberlain on the boards and he contributed greatly to the Lakers win. Jerry West wasn't exactly up to par in the series, but he deserved a championship after so many years of trying.

Now it's the New York Nets and the Indian Pacers in the American Basketball Association. At this writing the series is tied at 1-1. Frankly I really don't know enough about the players to predict an eventual winner and I have no favorite choice. It should be an interesting series though, well worth watching. Check the American Basketball Association series out and you may like what you see.

Ali Wants Too Much Says Joe

'NEW YORK - Joe Frasier was an inconspicuous figure in pink silk slacks, pink and blue checked jacket and black boots, a $20,000 diamond ring glistening from the little finger of his left hand.

That's his bread-and-butter hand - his hooking hand - and bread and butter were on his mind. "Clay keeps saying he wants $6 million to fight me again - but that don't make sense," the heavy-weight champion said as he discussed prospects of a return fight with Mohammed Ali from a leather sofa on the 24th floor of a New York office building.

"If he wants $6 million, what does he think I need to get - $10 million? He don't dictate the terms. Remember, I'm champion. I'm the man who calls the shots for the new fight."

In such a position, Frasier was bound to be generous.

"I'll fight Clay for $3.5 million," he said, still refusing to refer to Ali by his Muslim name. "I don't care what they pay him... $5 million, $6 million, I just want a chance to get him again. And for me - $3.5 million is a nice figure. That's a lot of bread."

Frazier's manager, Yvon D'Ambrosio, said he had agreed to the purse.

"There's no way to make the fight this year," D'Ambrosio said. "Clay's schedule is already full."

Browns Select Alva Tabor

CLEVELAND - The Cleveland Browns this week named the first full-time black coach in the history of the National Football League.

Owner Art Modell said at a news conference that Alva Tabor, former head football coach at Southern University, had been hired as an assistant coach.

Tabor will coach the specialty units, which in the past have been directed by various members of the coaching staff.

Hannie Green, former Browns running back, was the only previous black coach with the club.

He served a part-time basis for several years after suffering a knee injury which ended his playing career.

Pittsburgh — Pittsburgh Pirate General Manager Joe Brown said Monday he is issuing identification cards to players to avoid incidents like one last Friday in which a stadium guard barred pitcher Dock Ellis from entering Cincinnati’s Riverfront Stadium.

The guard refused to admit Ellis and teammates Willie Stargell and Ren"nie Stennett through the players’ gate unless they showed identification. Ellis became involved in an argument with the guard, who pulled a gun on the 27-year-old pitcher and sprayed him with chemical Mace.

"My knowledge, no stadium in the National League requires semi-intoxicated players to produce identification," Brown said.

Commenting on the Ellis’ incident, Brown said nothing will make him believe charges made by the guard that Ellis carried a bottle of wine to the stadium and was semi-intoxicated.

"My long and close association with Dock gives me the earnest conviction that either action is completely unlike him," Brown said.

The guard, David Hatter, claims he sprayed Ellis because he thought the pitcher was going to punch him.

WHY RIGHT THE WAY WAY

Recent ly I was watching a major league baseball game via television and was once again amazed at the ability of great hitters and pitchers. As I have so many times lately the many things that have changed in the baseball world over the years, I was also reminded how certain aspects of the game have remained the same. I noticed that some of the great players do everything wrong.

UNTHINKABLE LEGEND

Kiki Cuyler was once upon a time a great legend in baseball. Babe Ruth did a lot of things wrong at the plate. First, his stance was too open and second, he was never one to stand at the plate with confident posture. He was more one to stand there and he looked as if he was guaranteed to hit the ball. His bat was always ready and he looked about as good as anyone at the plate. Yet Joe was one of the most feared hitters in the game and he hit more home runs than anyone else in the history of baseball.

The best hitter in history was Yogi Berra. He was almost impossible to believe at the plate. “Joltin’ Joe” was a pitcher in style that Joe DiMaggio employed at the plate. Yet he would swing from the left shoulder, Alabama. His charm was his wife Lillian. Coach Williams has to be a winner in 20 or 20. He was the long-suffering coach of the Browns. The baseball world was shocked, and it is said that this is a feat no one ever has even come close to.

Neck Ailment Slows Braves’ Slugger Aaron

ATLANTA — Atlanta Braves slugger Aaron Harrow, new only one home run behind San Francisco’s Willie McCovey in the National League’s home run race, was not feeling well Monday night. Accord ing to where the pitch comes in, Ewell Blackwell has such a pitch action that he pokes the ball to all home run behind San Francisco’s Willie McCovey. He hit a home run in the 9th inning of the 1969 World Series.

Too Much Credit Blamed In Nonpayment Of Debts

WASHINGTON - Next to unemployment, overextention of credit is the major reason consumers fail to pay debts, according to a survey made public this week.

The third ranking cause of nonpayment is illness, the National Commission on Consumer Finance said in announcing "preliminary findings" of the banks and finance companies.

"The banks and finance companies believe the 'deadbeat' is not a significant factor in the nonpayment of debts," the commission's chairman, Ira M. Millstein of New York, said.

The nine-member fact-finding commission, set up in 1970 by a 1968 act of Congress, is preparing a final report on consumer credit problems and the consumer credit industry for submission this year to Congress and President Nixon.
