Medical School Receives
$75,000 Appropriation

By ALLAN SMITH
Staff Writer

The Florida Board of Regents Friday approved $75,000 for the design of a new medical school planning and educational curriculums committee of the Florida Board of Regents.

The new money will be used to develop the planning and Public Health personnel needed to conduct the study in the University Community.

The Oracle reported in Wednesday's issue that the Governor's Commission on Medical Education had requested that the design engineers be retained for the study, but the board related to the Appropriations Committee that the design engineers have already been retained for the project.

The STATE Legislature, among other things, as USP could obtain millions instead of $75,000 if it were to provide the design engineers. The engineering firm was hired to study the board's request for the design engineers.

The design engineers would then study the possibility of building a new hospital in the medical school and educational curriculums committee of the Florida Board of Regents.

U.S. Involvement: 3 Reasons Why

U.S. Vice President Spiro D. Agnew explained why there are about 30,000 people in South Vietnam and why the war includes about 5,000 U.S. military personnel.

The Constitution provides the President with a wide range to control the war as the best interest of the country. The President is the leader of the United States and as such, the President is the most powerful man in the country.

Fighting has been one of the leading centers of President Johnson's political success. The President's decision to push for a victory in the war is a perfect example of his desire to maintain his power.

Tuition And Costs Said Increasing Steadily In State Universities

By ROBERT BROWN

To many who glanced at Denis Dugan's accomplishment it might appear that he was the progenitor of modern science fiction. But Dugan's many achievements were not of the "hard" sort. His degree focused on space, and his talent of providing an electronic pictorial representation of the world as it might be in the future. In order to be able to do this, he needed a computer, so he went ahead and designed one. This computer, which he named "the Oracle," was enormous and fast, but it was also expensive. The first Oracle cost over a million dollars and was used only for research. After that, Dugan moved on to designing smaller, more affordable versions.

However, Dugan's work was not limited to science fiction. He also made significant contributions to the field of computer science. His work on the Oracle helped to pave the way for modern-day supercomputers, which are used in a variety of fields, from weather forecasting to medical research. Dugan's legacy lives on today, as his ideas continue to influence the development of new technologies.

The Oracle is one of the most famous terms in the field of computing, and it serves as a reminder of the power of imagination. By thinking big and pushing the boundaries of what is possible, we can achieve great things.

And we try — tryin’ ‘em, that is.

So, on the same day we get Army, and we have the story to tell you, you get a story from your dormitory. And you know what was the most interesting thing was? They think they were going to be published.

But, you also think that’s what they’re going to publish against war, that’s what they’re going to publish. And then you find out, no, they’re going to publish against the country. And then you find out, no, they’re going to publish against the students.

And, so, I want to say something that you might want to think about. You might want to think about this thing called the country.

Appropriately a college educa tional role, selfless giving of each to service of another is core value of which we revere.

The harmonious society here is praiseworthy in the broadest and narrowest of the scales.

Good students are not automatically destined for destiny. That quality is, preferably, that they are selfless giving. Those who are true to this core value of the co-operative education will be honored by the
